

Real Attribution

TradeTracker's Real Attribution is a Game-Changing approach for the telecom industry.

Real Attribution

The performance marketing industry has been dominated by that illustrious last click, with rewards captured by the last touchpoint while the contribution of publishers to the conversion path is neglected. The disparity between activity, value and reward has been left unresolved. Until now.

TradeTracker's Real Attribution is a game-changing approach to affiliate marketing and it's motivating publishers with fair rewards, added value, transparency and results like no other. Real Attribution is the holy grail of affiliate marketing – and it's here now.

Attributable value

Real Attribution is designed to give advertisers full control in optimising campaigns which rewards all relevant publishers involved in the consumer journey. Whether they're initiating, assisting or converting. Five robust attribution models and a customisable solution give advertisers the power to weigh the elements that count, to multiply the results achieved in more inspired, more attractive campaigns and to reward publishers appropriately.

Any Channel Paid On Performance

More revenue, new channels

Performance marketing is all about action based remuneration of publisher's involvement, but per market standard the last click earned commission per default. Until today.

In the affiliate channel, attributing commissions to multiple touchpoints creates revolutionary brand exposure opportunities whereas any involved publisher is eligible for commission.

Publishers are triggered to include significant promotions at all stages of the purchase funnel, which increases brand visibility greatly and proves to initiate new customer journeys and transactions. It allows advertisers to access a whole new consumer pool whilst optimising marketing spend.

Marketing budgets are often assigned to email, display, social, search and many more. However, their shared disadvantage is the inability to pay per conversion – actual performance. It's time to redefine budget allocation and invest in true performance based advertising.

Access more channels, decrease risk on budget spend and improve revenue significantly.

Any publisher at your fingertips

Getting a brand promoted by the world's largest publishers without payment of fixed fees or high CPM rates. It's every marketer's dream, now made possible through applying attribution.

Media houses strive for optimum results per visitor and attribution fulfils their need to generate income, always.

Impressions or post-view campaigns can be neatly integrated to commission models, which provides the solution to their eCPM being under constant pressure. It enables these publishers to dedicate media space and inventory for such attractive campaigns.

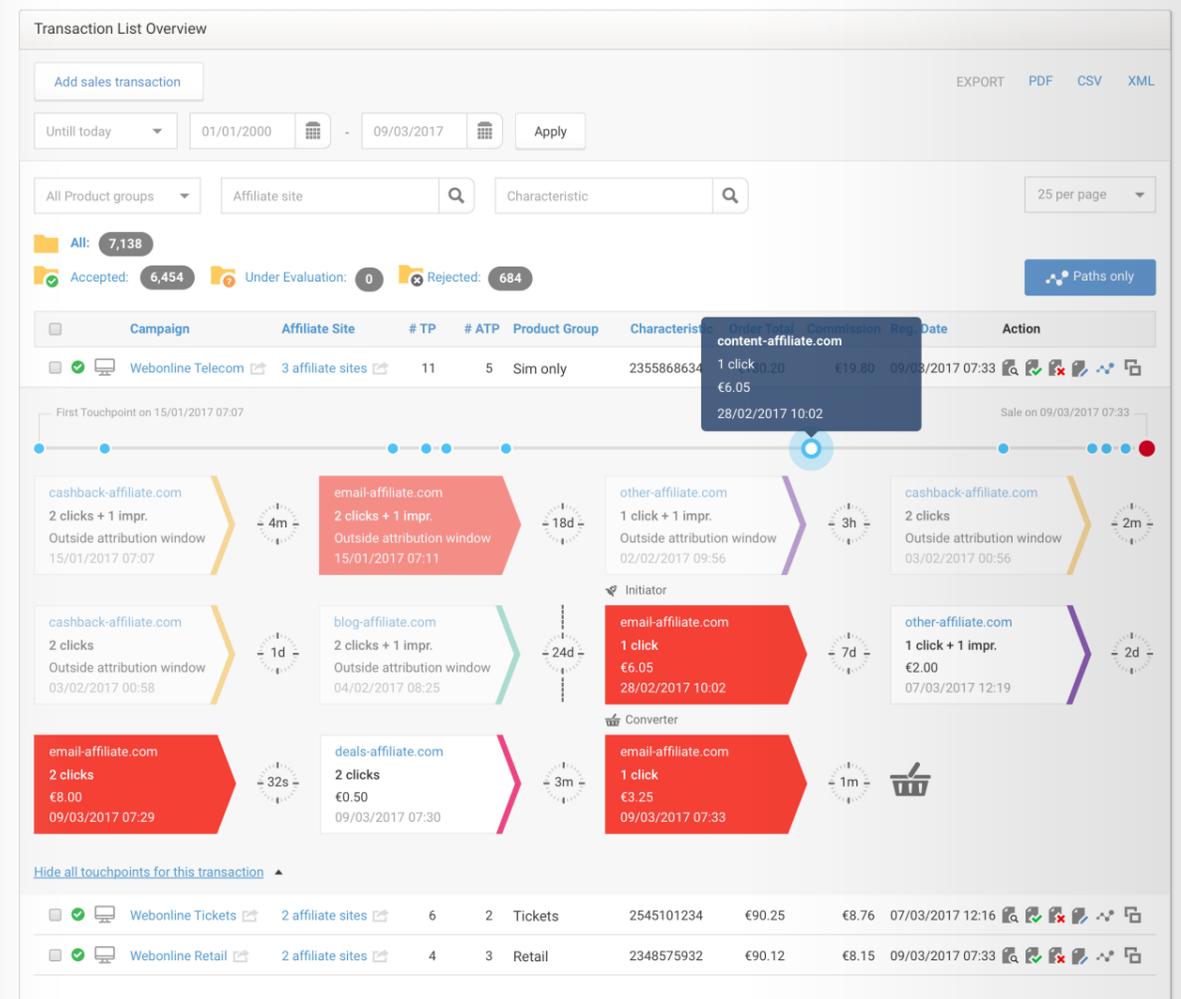

Publishers earn their commissions while advertisers remunerate based on performance – when transactions are completed. This opens-up doors for renewed cooperation with the largest publishers which, until today, have only worked on CPM, CPC or fixed fee commission models.

For every publisher, of any size, attribution is the answer to 'last-click competition' and creates new revenue streams for both the publisher and advertiser alike. This is the future of performance marketing.

Include a variety of channels

Simplify deduplication policies by adopting attribution. Each touchpoint in the customer journey has its value, therefore it should be possible to assign fractions of commission and remunerate no matter the channel or whether it's paid or owned.

Gain invaluable insights to how multiple channels interact in the customer journey. Include proprietary newsletters or paid search in the customer journey and value additional publisher' promotional efforts by including their touchpoints and attribute their fair share of total available commission.

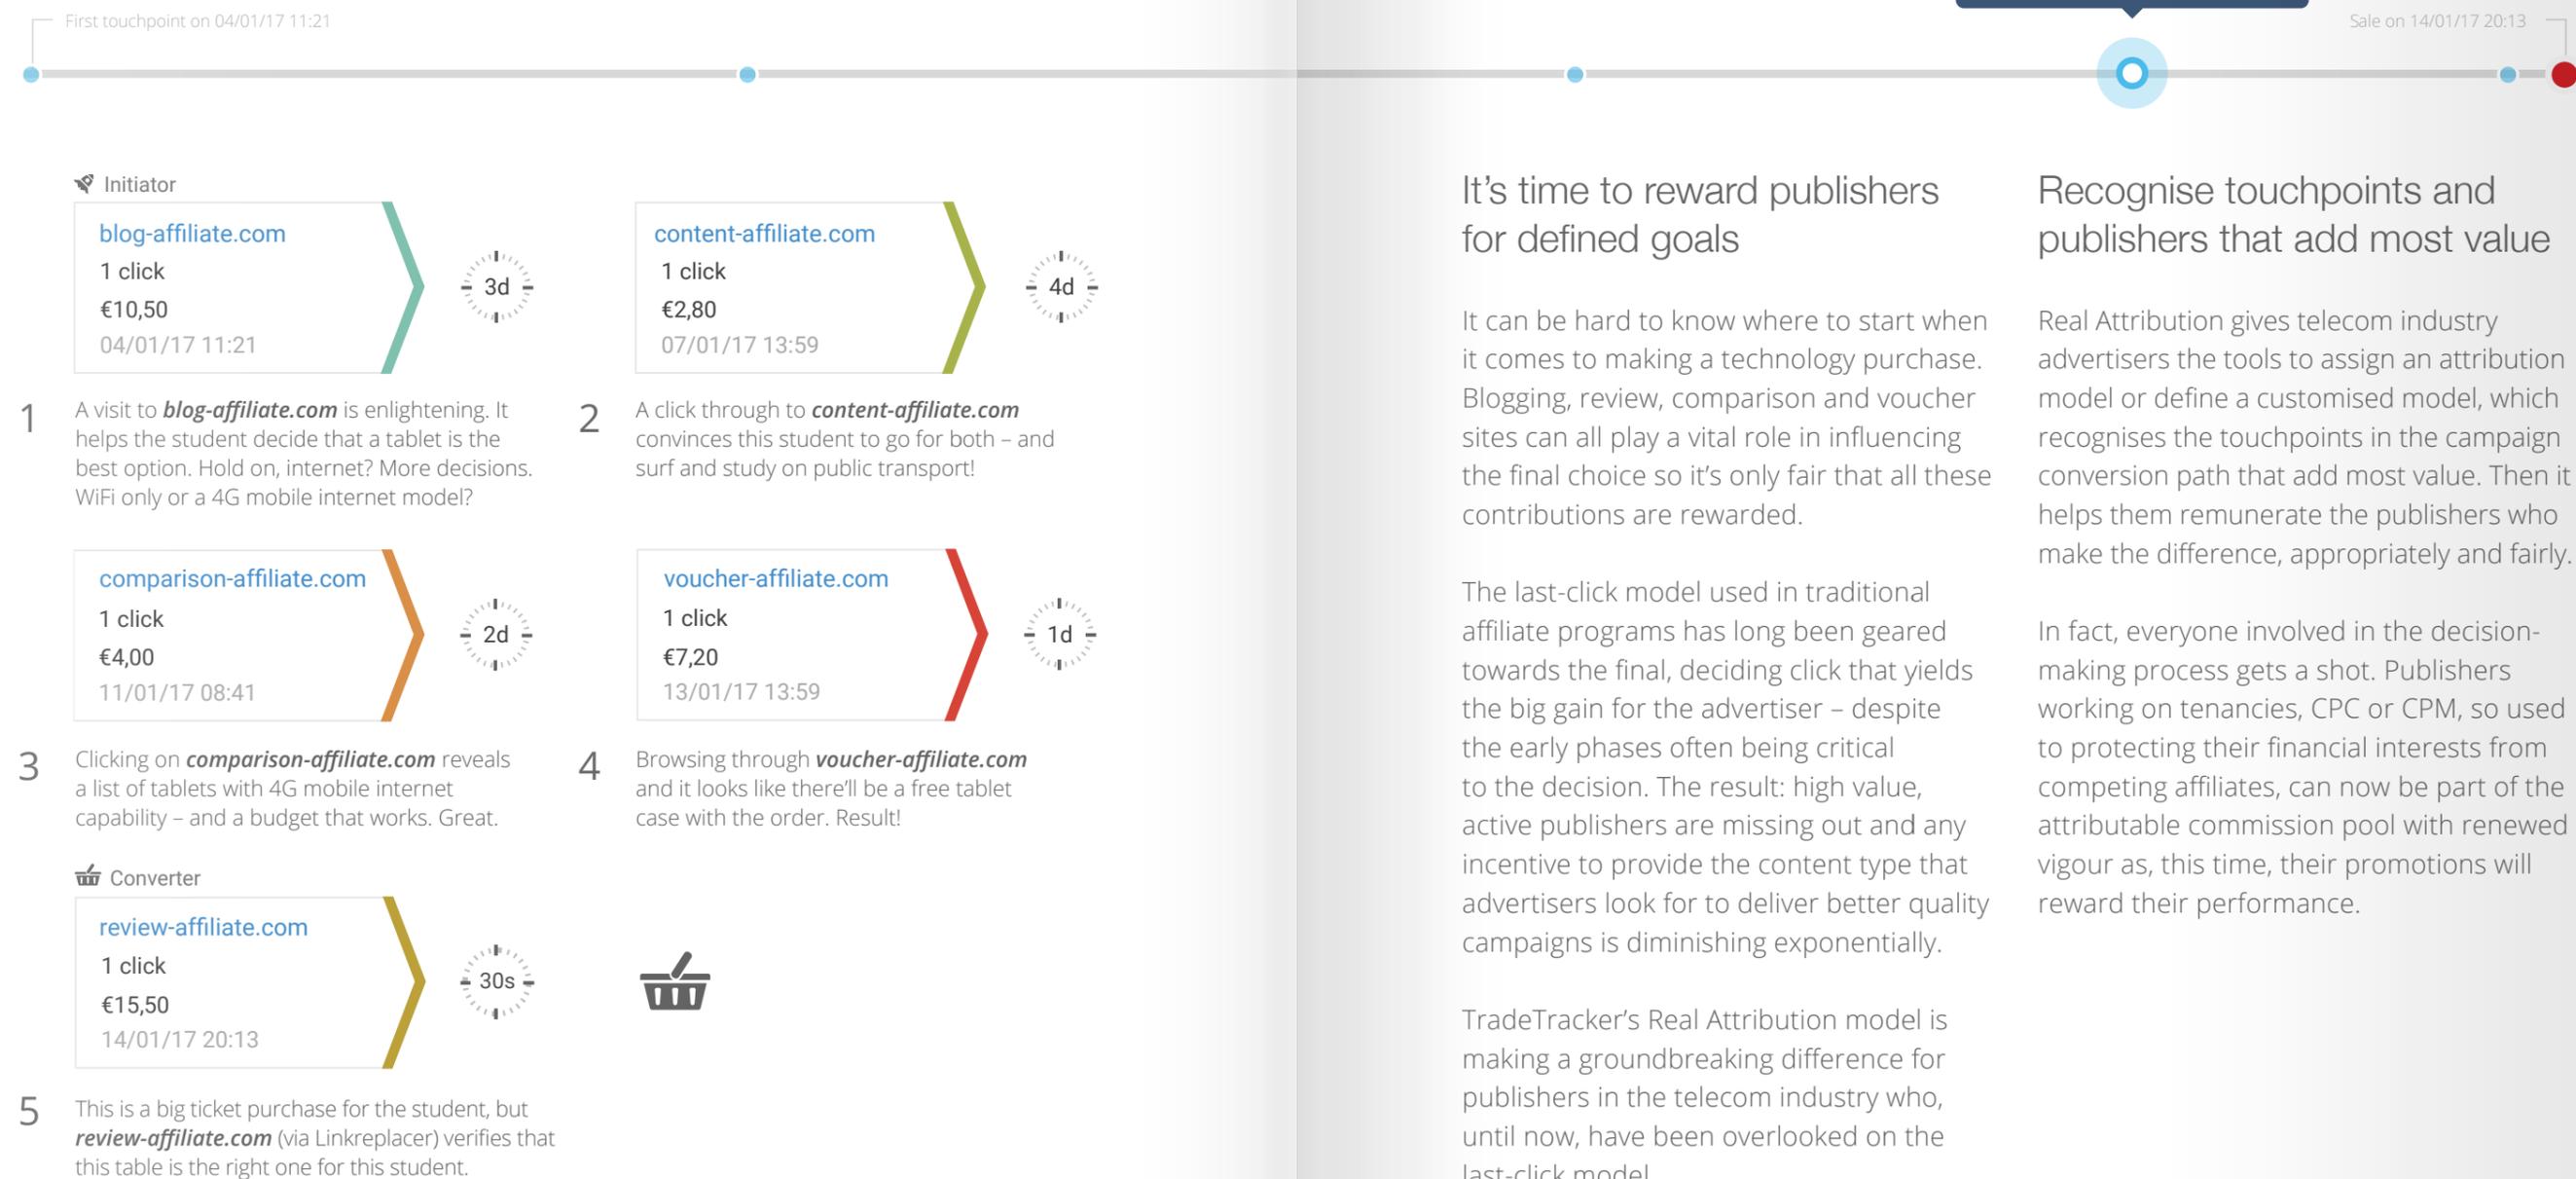

Real Attribution with the most intuitive interface

Let's Talk About Telecom

Take a typical technology purchase journey: Embarking on a course of study calls for good preparation and the right tech. Will it be a tablet, a small notebook or a mobile phone? Where do we start?

It's time to reward publishers for defined goals

It can be hard to know where to start when it comes to making a technology purchase. Blogging, review, comparison and voucher sites can all play a vital role in influencing the final choice so it's only fair that all these contributions are rewarded.

The last-click model used in traditional affiliate programs has long been geared towards the final, deciding click that yields the big gain for the advertiser – despite the early phases often being critical to the decision. The result: high value, active publishers are missing out and any incentive to provide the content type that advertisers look for to deliver better quality campaigns is diminishing exponentially.

TradeTracker's Real Attribution model is making a groundbreaking difference for publishers in the telecom industry who, until now, have been overlooked on the last-click model.

Recognise touchpoints and publishers that add most value

Real Attribution gives telecom industry advertisers the tools to assign an attribution model or define a customised model, which recognises the touchpoints in the campaign conversion path that add most value. Then it helps them remunerate the publishers who make the difference, appropriately and fairly.

In fact, everyone involved in the decision-making process gets a shot. Publishers working on tenancies, CPC or CPM, so used to protecting their financial interests from competing affiliates, can now be part of the attributable commission pool with renewed vigour as, this time, their promotions will reward their performance.

Value-Focused Attribution Models

Breathing new life into telecom industry performance campaigns

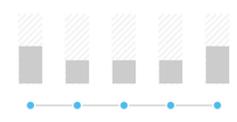

Insights garnered from TradeTracker's conversion path tracking shows telecom advertisers have really profited from our customised payout, or hybrid, models. They've targeted initiators with incredible accuracy and tripled the impressions rate from publishers achieving an overall increase in sales of more than 25% – and had a seriously positive effect on brand awareness. It's clear it's time for a move from last-click to value-focussed models.

Linear

Commission is split evenly across all touchpoints in the conversion path, prompting excellent results for telecom advertisers with a wide range of products. This model creates additional incentives for telecom players and is seeing an overall increase in sales of more than 10% in over 95% of all cases within the first quarter of introduction.

Position Based

The 40-20-40 commission scheme is the most profitable way of attributing the telecom publisher base with focus on the start and end of the customer cycle. Advertisers get more from their brand building and remain strong on conversation-driven publishers; when brand awareness is key, this is the best model for results.

Custom

This model comprises multiple strategies combined into one powerful attribution model with ultra-specific targets so telecom advertisers who often operate within niche markets can really benefit. Providers running lead generation campaigns for network sign-ups lowered rejection rates to below 5% simply by attributing different publisher types by weighting target groups.

Other useful models

Last Touchpoint

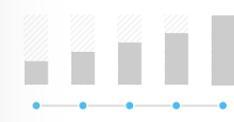

The traditional, last touchpoint gets all model. Totally customisable by using exceptions for specific site types.

First Touchpoint

Vice versa: first touchpoint gets all. Super useful when you want to focus on getting more traffic and branding from publishers with a vast reach. A great strategy for brands with emerging brand value.

Time Decay

Touchpoints closer to the conversion get a higher share of the commission. Often the first choice for advertisers working with all site types and advertisers pushing short-term incentives, like flash sales, for their consumers.

Exceptions to the rule

Every attribution model has the option to add exceptions to the rule. Still want to grant specific publishers or site types a fixed share of the commission? Simply add an exception for these publishers without losing any transparency.

Getting Started

1 Set your goals and define your model

The first step when launching your attribution model is to define your goals. Is branding a primary aspect of your affiliate strategy? Then add weight to the initiating touchpoints of your conversion. Is your focus on getting more traffic from specific site types? Then just increase the relative importance of the publishers that fall into this site type category by increasing their weighting within the attribution model. Working with your account manager, you can define the attribution model that perfectly matches your goals and objectives.

2 Communicate and reach your publisher base

When your model is defined and ready to launch, make sure that your publishers know about it. Those you deem important will see an increasing ROI fast – so ensure they're ready to give your campaign the best chance of success. Using TradeTracker's conversion path reports, you can project the impact your new model will have; your projections can then be used to target specific affiliates by demonstrating the increased revenue your attribution model will bring them.

3 Monitor and optimise

TradeTracker's interface and reports will show you exactly how the new attribution model is transforming the roles of your different publishers and, crucially, how their additional earnings are elevating campaign results. TradeTracker lets you enhance your attribution model with exciting new elements, such as the facility to add a CPC or CPM component for selected publishers so you can really maximise the performance of your campaign.
